Smoke is Ascending From Mount Ranier.

PENYOYER TO CLEVELAND.

The Oregon Governor Writes a Characteristic Letter to President Cleveland on Christmas Day—Cleveland Against Democracy and Against the People on the Currency Question.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 25.—The Post-Intelligencer exploration party has fully confirmed the previous statements that smoke has ascended from the summit of Mount Ranier in the last two months, for the explorers are now camped on the side of the mountain over half way to the summit and have actually seen great volumes of smoke and cinders of steam pouring from the crater. This news was brought by a carrier pigeon to Fred S. Meeker's tent at Puysallup.

The following is the message: "St. Emos Pass, altitude 8,000 feet, 12 noon, Christmas day.—The exploration has demonstrated beyond all doubt that Mount Ranier has been smoking. Yesterday afternoon, while crossing the vast snow field dividing the Elysian field and Winthrop glacier, Major Ingraham suddenly shouted, 'See the smoke; see the steam.' The top of the mountain was fully five miles away, and jets of steam like geysers shot upward 200 feet or more, and further to the right a column of densely black smoke rose in the crater in five curls to a height of several hundred feet."

PENYOYER TO CLEVELAND. PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 25.—Governor Penoyer transmitted President Cleveland today by sending him the following letter:

"Christmas has again visited our stricken land with its prostrated industries and its idle throngs, willing but unable to work, and unwillingly forced to beg or suffer. Your panacea—a change in the Sherman law and the tariff—has been administered, but there is no change in the sad condition of our unfortunate country. After two years of anxious delay and mismanagement, you have, thank heaven, at last discovered the real trouble although you have not proposed the proper remedy. As you now concede, the country needs more money, but it does not want the worthless stuff you proffer. It needs gold and silver money with which to pay debts and it does not want bank notes with which it cannot pay debts. Sixty years ago the democratic party and a president who defied the banks in the interest of the people. Has it now a president, who defies the people in the interest of the banks? All the traditions of the party which elected you are for gold and silver money and against bank currency. Do you aspire to furnish an example of treason to the cause entrusted to your care which will be without any parallel, except one, in all the annals of American history?"

"Your party in both houses favors the restoration of silver as standard money; the people, actually suffering from the existing prostration of business, favors it; and will you not stand with them in overturning the monometallic policy of the British moneyed oligarchy, which is fast degrading our fair country to the condition of a subjugated province and our hitherto free people to a condition of financial serfdom?"

"Always remembering the unemployed multitudes all over our broad land, I pray that God may give you light and strength to do the right."

Literary Note.

The relation which price bears to quality in literature is made obscure by the Christmas COMMERCE. Stories by Rudyard Kipling, Wm. Dean Howells, Mrs. Spencer, Frank, M. A. Burton Harrison, and Albion W. Tourgee, are interspersed with poetry by Sir Edwin Arnold, Edmund Clarence Steadman, and James Whitcomb Riley, while through the number are scattered illustrations by such famous artists as Remington, Dozier, Reinart, Turner, Van Schaick, Gibson, and Stevens. A series of portraits of beautiful women of society illustrate an article on The Relations of Photography to Art; a travel article by Napoleon Ney, grandson of the famous Field Marshal; one of the series of Great Passions of History, to which Froude and Gosse have already contributed, and half a dozen others equally interesting, go to make up the attractions of the number. The COMMERCE people say: "We might charge you more for this number, but, in all frankness, could we give you better material, better illustrated, if we charged you a dollar a copy?"

"DIXIE."

The Tune Brought Him Close to His Old Kentucky Home.

This story is not new. It is old in point of date, though not in publicity. It is true, however, or at least vouched for as such by a New York man born in the south. And this is the way he told it in Louisville some time ago:

"What year was it that Pat Gilmore's band was playing in Madison Square Garden for the last time? It doesn't matter. It was the year before Gilmore's death anyhow. I ought to remember the date, though, for one of your Louisville boys caused me to remember every incident of a certain night that season. I'll tell you all about it if you like."

The question in the New Yorker's words was dropped in the tone that vociferated his wish to tell the story, and it was called for by a polite chorus.

"I had been to a dinner party and drifted into the Garden because I was lonely and had seen everything at the theaters worth seeing. I didn't pay much attention to the concert, and as I sipped a green mint I became interested in a young man at the table next to mine. I didn't know him then, but I learned afterward that he was a prominent young insurance man of Louisville. He had evidently been seeing the seamy side of New York for some days and had 'held up his end,' as is the custom of Kentuckians. But he had come to the conclusion that he needed a little solitude; had forsaken his friends and found the desired loneliness in the crowded garden. He picked his steps with suspicious care as he came in, but the good form of his appearance was marred only by a wrinkle or two on the linen that formed part of his evening dress. The cause of these wrinkles was apparent when, leaving the glass untasted before him, his head sank and he fell into a much needed sleep. I smiled and thought of other things until toward the close of the programme the band began a medley of national airs. It opened with 'Yankee Doodle.' 'Marching Through Georgia,' and half a dozen other tunes followed, and then with a brass crash the band started the air that for all time will start a tingling every drop of blood in the veins of a southern born man. The bowed neck of the sleeping stranger swung straight and his eyes opened. Dazed by his sudden awakening, he looked about him a moment. Then, as the strains of the music swept upon his ear, he sprang to his feet, shot one hand with clinched fist above his head, and in a voice that echoed from side to side of the big building yelled:

"Dixie, by G—d!" "There was an instant of dead silence followed by a shout of laughter and applause. Gilmore looked around, provoked and disconcerted, and for the first time that famous band blundered and the medley continued with little regard for musical accuracy. No lobster a la Newburg was ever redder than that young man from Louisville as he sat in his chair. He wished himself a thousand miles away, but he was too game to run, and when first one and then another employee of the place gathered around him and told him he must leave this concert hall followed:

"You must get out of here."

"I won't do it."

"You've got to. You've raised a disturbance here, and you'll either get out or be put out."

"I won't go. I'm sorry I made any noise, but it will be bad for the first man that lays hands on me for cheering for Dixie."

"Come! Get out of here."

"And just then, three tables away, a big dark man arose and came toward the group. From five tables away a little man with blazing eyes was already coming. Fifteen or twenty men were coming from this side and that. I lost count of the number, but in a moment the employees around the young stranger were no longer in an overwhelming majority, and in low, quiet tones in whose coolness lay the bulldog growl I heard:

"He'll not go out."

"Not until he's quite ready."

"Leave the gentleman alone and leave him at once!"

"And they left him. And the crowd made Gilmore play that medley three times. And every time 'Dixie' was reached there was a cheer that made the roof ring. And that's all there is to my story except that I am going to look up that young man while I'm here, because he blotted out ten years of New York and brought me mighty close to 'my old Kentucky home' that night."

—Louisville Courier-Journal.

There is a curious belief among some of the colored people of this city, Maryland and Virginia. It is no uncommon sight to see them with a little knot or kinky hair right on top of the head, tied up tightly with a bit of string or ribbon. If you ask any of these old uncles or aunts the meaning of the strange hairdressing, they will say, "Why, hunny, I does dat to keep my pallet from falling down my throat and chokin me."

Modern Improvements.

Schoolboy (wearily)—What's the use of learning all this stuff?

Teacher—It is chiefly to cultivate the memory.

Schoolboy—Don't you think it would be more sensible to buy a phonograph?

"Women have been potent political factors at the late election in five states. In Colorado, Wyoming, Kentucky, Illinois and New York they have turned the political scale. Yet in Kansas and New York woman suffrage has just been defeated, in part by Republican votes. Of woman in this election it may be said, as was said of her great exemplar: 'She saved others. Herself she could not save.' But parties, like individuals, in the long run become aware of their own interests. Women are the predestined saviors of our free institutions, and society for the own protection will soon arm them with the ballot."—Boston Woman's Journal.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers, and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale in all drug stores and by mail order, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not be misled.
